

IT IS READY.

The Monsfer Ferryboat Solano

Has had all Repairs Completed.

Will Resume her Trips to Benicia

On the First Day of June, on which Date a New Time Card will go Into Effect.

The Solano Ready.

The ferry train service between Port Costa and Benicia will be resumed about June 1st, and a new time card is now being arranged in General Superintendent J. A. Fillmore's office to provide for the resumption of the ferry service. Since the day the big ferry boat Solano met with an accident nearly three months ago, all through trains coming down by way of Sacramento have been run by way of Stockton, increasing the running time of the trains just two hours. This time will be made up in the new time-card. Another important change to be provided in the new time-card is in the time fixed for the arrival of the second-class Central overland. The difference in time between the second-class Central overland and the fast mail between Ogden and San Francisco, west bound, is seven hours. After the 1st of the month the running time of the two trains will be more nearly equal. The company expects to make up the seven hours, or the greater part of it, and the train now due here at 6:45 a. m. will get here nearly seven hours earlier. The repairs on the ferry-boat Solano were finished yesterday, and as soon as the work on the aprons at the Port Costa and Benicia slips is completed the ferry service will be resumed with the new time-card in effect.

The Death Bride.

The people of Berkeley are reminded that the grand benefit to be given by the dramatic section of the Sons of Hermann, for the family of the late Phil Johnson, takes place this evening at Unity Hall on Addison street, back of the postoffice, East Berkeley. The performance is an excellent one and the performers are all perfect in their parts of the play. The admission is only 25 cents, and as the play is for such a worthy object the house should be packed. People who have other engagements, or who cannot go anyway, should purchase a ticket to help so worthy a cause. Hold back your foreign mission money and give it to home missions where you know that it will do some good.

Another Straw.

In relation to the iron trade the improvement has now spread to practically every section of the country and to every department with a few exceptions. The consumption is growing and the demand is much better. Thus far only a few Eastern concerns have followed the initiative of the West in advancing wages, from the fact that the improvement in prices has only just reached there. The steel rail trade is in better shape and the wire industry is quite active. There has been a sharp advance in nails.

Wanted His Fee.

Cr. J. P. H. Dunn, acting surgeon for the Southern Pacific in Oakland, came within an ace of going to jail for contempt of court yesterday afternoon. He was called as a witness in the case of Louis Matheny, accused of burglary. The doctor was asked a technical question, and he declined to answer on the ground that he had not been called as an expert witness, but simply as a witness in regard to facts.

Judge Ellsworth directed him to answer the question, and he declined to do so. The Judge was going to send him to jail, when the doctor asked for time to consult his attorney, A. A. Moore. Dr. Dunn was advised to answer the question under protest, and he did so, and was purged of contempt. Many of the physicians of Oakland have formed a combination and decided not to give expert testimony unless they are paid the regular fee. Dr. Dunn is backed by the combination. He will now sue the country to recover his fee, and this will be made a test case.

Election Expenses.

M. L. Hanscom's expenses during the late election amounted to $80 75. Richard Lloyd paid out $36 55. Isaac W. Wells was out $59 72. Trustee Rickard spent $5 00. John Martin paid out $23 50, while Captain Gage disbursed $15 50. School Directors E. J. Wickson reports $10 50, S. H. Dikeman $9 00 and George A. Norton $14 00.

Burglars Loot a Restaurant.

Burglars visited Trestle Glen Park in East Oakland on Wednesday night and looted the restaurant on the grounds. The thieves practically carried off everything that was moveable in the place except the chairs and tables. They left no clew.

Grand Picnic.

The members of the West Berkeley Fire Department held a meeting on Wednesday evening last and decided to hold a grand picnic at Oak Grove on Sunday, June 23.

Committees have been appointed to look after the matter of transportation and to see that the grounds are in perfect order.

The members of Beacon and Posen Fire companies have given picnics before at Oak Grove, and all who attend them can testify to the perfect order that was maintained and to the good times that were had. Valuable prizes will be given this year for athletic sports, and the young farmers who have got fast horses will be given a chance to speed them for valuable prizes. A full announcement of games and sports together with the prizes will appear later on.

Durrant's Trial.

The trial of W. H. T. Durrant for the murders of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams will probably take place before Judge Murphy. The formal order of assignment has not been signed, but it is known that Presiding Judge Sanderson believes Judge Murphy, in view of his long experience in criminal cases, is the proper man to try such an important case. The two informations against Durrant were filed by the District Attorney in Judge Murphy's court last Wednesday afternoon.

Inquiry was made at the District Attorney's office yesterday as to the probable date of Durrant's trial. It was stated that the prosecution would be ready to proceed at any time, but that, in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Fredericks case, there would be no effort to rush matters. The general belief is that the case will not reach a hearing before a jury until some time in July.

The National Beer.

While on a business trip to Oakland last week we had occasion to visit the National Bottling works, corner of Franklin and Ninth streets, which we agreed to make mention of but through the oversight of our foreman the item did not appear. The Bottling works are conducted by Messrs. Bock & Kinchner and every detail of the work is personally supervised by them. The Bottling department is kept in perfect order, clean and neat, and only skilled workmen are employed. The National Lager Beer, manufactured in San Francisco has a national reputation for its excellent qualities of taste, and is recommended by eminent physicians for its purity. There is no better or more wholesome drink than the National Lager beer made wholly from the products of the State of California, and, notwithstanding the well advertised Milwaukee, St. Louis and Chicago bars—all first class—the National stands on the top shelf.

A Scheme.

A scheme is now on foot to make a consolidation of silver mining companies on the Comstock for the purpose of purchasing a part of the Brunswick lode which lies about one mile east of the Comstock and is developing richly. Each company will have an interest according to the number of feet which it owns. Should the matter go through it will probably give an impetus to the Virginia mines that they have not had in many years.

Women's Congress.

The Women's Congress has proved the success which was predicted for it. The First Congregational Church, into which can be packed about 5000 people, is not large enough to hold all the people who are desirous of hearing the distinguished lady speakers who appear upon the platform.

It would be well to obtain the use of the Mechanics Pavilion for two or three meetings, which would probably draw 10,000 people at a time. Many do not go now on account of the crush.

Wants $6.50.

Peter Cunningham was an old gardener and died in the almshouse in San Francisco. His body got into the Cooper Medical Institute, for dissection in the usual way. His brother accidentally found it out and made a demand for it. So far he has not been able to get it without he pays $6 50 which it cost to embalm it. There does not seem to be any power to make the college give up the body unless he pays the amount aforesaid.

Real Estate Transfers.

James Ayers to Catherine Ayers, lot 46, range 3, Hardy tract.

William C. and Mattie C. Bissell to Joseph and Mary Tape, lot 24, block H, map of southern portion of Blake tract.

George Knapp (by A. L. Willey attorney) to John D. Meinhardt, lot 16, block D, Carrison tract.

David Campbell has been elected Chief of the Portland, Oregon, fire department.

The Corral Hollow Railroad will have a terminus at Stockton. The road will do a general freight business.

A big speculation is going on in the Eastern wheat market. In New York the transactions yesterday involved 287,000,000 bushels of grain.

Mrs. Col. Gast, who has been confined to her bed for some time with a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels, is convalescent, and if she has no set back will be all right in a very short time.

WEDDING BELLS

Ring Out Merrily in West Berkeley.

A Student of the Bates' Gymnasium

Narrowly Escapes Death Yesterday.

A List of the New Advertisers that Are Flocking to the Gazette the Popular Paper.

Those Wedding Bells.

It has been said very often that there are times when it is good for a man to be alone. But the times when he should have company are in so much a larger majority that the former proves only an exception to the general rule.

Everybody in the West End knows Pete Haller, the ex-fireman, and at present a man who carries on the blacksmithing business. Pete can tell you all about the old volunteer fire department in San Francisco, as well as something about the New York fire department and he is not a very old man either.

He has had some practical married experience and last night entered into his third matrimonial venture. It has not got to be monotonous with him. Like a war-horse, he is ready for the fray.

The good lady to whom he has bound himself has had equally as much experience as Pete, her first husband being known under that fanciful cognomen of Bottle Meyers. He was in business in San Francisco for a number of years and was well known by all of the firemen and police of that virtuous city.

Suffice it to say that their combined experience was enough to form a strong copartnership.

To have the knot tied properly Pete said he must have Justice Lord do the business. Accordingly the Judge repaired to the residence of the bride's parents, 1421 Adeline street, Oakland, and when the blushing couple stood before him he unblushingly read the code to them in the manner provided for such occasions. Not exactly in the words of the minister who was awakened up one very stormy night to perform a like ceremony. He refused to dress but putting his head out of the window he told the couple to stand up and join their hands, when he said in distinct tones:

Out of this window in this stormy weather. I join this man and woman together. None but he who rules the thunder. Shall tear this man and woman asunder.

The happy couple, whose names appear on the license as Mary Frances Powell and Peter Haller cooed the night long in Oakland and then repaired to the beautiful home in West Berkeley which had been heretofore prepared by the delighted groom.

Court Notes.

The case of Joseph Raymond vs. A. Berg was hotly contested in Judge Lord's court yesterday. Judge Penwell appeared for the plaintiff and H. S. Aldrich for the defendant. The case as stated by defendant's attorney was to the effect that the plaintiff had sold the defendant Berg a horse and buggy with whip and robes for the sum of $45. In consideration he had taken a glass case valued at $10 and $5 in money, leaving a balance due of $30, which plaintiff sued for. The attention of the court was taken up for several hours and the outcome was that the court gave judgment for the plaintiff. A motion was made for a stay of execution for ten days. In the meantime an appeal may be perfected, or the case settled by payment.

A Medicinal Mistake.

Jose I. Barrillos, nephew of Ex-President Barrillos of Guatemala, came very near never seeing his native land again, yesterday. It was through an accident that the fatal termination came so near.

Young Barrillos is a student at the Gymnasium and for several weeks his health has not been good. His physician prescribed a tonic for him which he had been accustomed to taking before his noon-day meal.

Yesterday he went to his room for the purpose of taking the medicine as was his usual custom. He had been using other medicines and sitting along side of the bottle containing the stimulant were several other bottles, one of which contained a poison. As the bottles were all of the same size he did not take particular notice of the one he first put his hands upon and, as it turned out, it was the wrong one for him to take an internal dose from.

Hardly had the medicine been swallowed when he began to feel the effects of it and he glanced hastily at the bottle and found his mistake.

To say that he was frightened would not convey the idea in a light strong enough. His head became dizzy and his legs weakened under him. However he managed to get downstairs and found his principal to whom he told the facts in a very hurried manner. This gentleman hurried the young man across the campus as fast as possible. Over the bridge and out through the western gate was a matter of but a few minutes. Near by an apothecary did dwell and very quickly the young man was pumped out. A physician had been called who, on arriving on the ground, pronounced the young man out of danger.

It was a close call.

New Advertisers.

The GAZETTE is becoming so popular among the people, that we believe it for the public interest to notice the new advertisers whose advertisements have appeared in these columns within the past few days.

The French Restaurant conducted by Mrs. E. Beraun on University Avenue near Fifth.

Rutledges drug store on the corner of University avenue and Fifth.

J. Spenger, groceries and provisions. Fourth street between University avenue and Bristol.

The Fairview hotel, situated at the foot of Bristol street announces its terms to the public.

Miss Kate Teague, the popular postmistress, advertises school books, stationery and notions.

Mrs. M. Fromm, who conducts a branch of the Dwight Way bakery, announces this fact to the public.

Ramos & Renas, who do an extensive business in the wood, coal, hay and grain way are also to the front with an advertisement.

H. T. Bryant, who is the agent for R. W. Baker, the well known Lorin grocer, has his card in a conspicuous place.

The Girard Piano company of Oakland are advertising sewing machines at very low prices.

The Lowell Diamond Wheelery of 399 Twelfth street Oakland, tell you what they have got.

Mohns & Kaltenbach of the big wine vaults, at 29 Market street, near the ferry San Francisco, tell you what they have got in the way of family trade and deliver the same free of charge at your residence.

Daniel Dugan, the well known grocer at the corner of Third and Rose streets is also out with an announcement of his business.

Quong Lee, who conducts a laundry on University avenue near Fifth street, thinks that if it is good for the white man to advertise it is also good for him, so his advertisement appears in these columns.

The advertisements have all come in during the past week, which shows that the GAZETTE is the best medium in Berkeley for advertisers.

This order has been made so that the fruit will all be sold under one roof and not be scattered round in different auction houses as has been the custom in former years. It is estimated that it will take 1525 cars to transport the small fruits of California to Chicago this season.

TOWN OFFICIAL PAPER.

FRIDAY, MAY 24, 1895

MUST BUILD.

The time has come when it is positively necessary to have more room for the education of the children of Berkeley. At the present time the schools are all over crowded, and the late census tells us the reason why. The High School has been over crowded since the first of the term and at that time it almost set Professor Waterman crazy in devising ways and means for taking care of the then large and overflowing classes. He managed it, however, by giving the pupils only half a day each. This year he is completely up a stump and does not know which way to turn. The classes will be so large that the present building will not contain them and it would take the full twenty-four hours of each day to teach them as they were taught last year. Professor Waterman says that it is absolutely necessary to have at least two more rooms, and three or more teachers, as soon as school begins. These will be provided for by the Board of Education, beyond a doubt, but it seems to us a foolish thing to spend money for rent when the town should own its own building. Of course for a time, under the existing conditions, the Board of Education will have to rent suitable rooms for the immediate wants of the High School. We believe, however, that the question of erecting a new High School building should be taken up at once. The town is growing very rapidly and the present High School building is entirely inadequate for the purposes for which it was intended.

The Board of Education should call for a special election for the purpose of voting bonds, the money from the sale of which would be used for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and properly equipping a new High School building. Bonds running for twenty years and drawing 6 per cent would be sold very readily and at a large premium. The building will be built and the people who are living here now would only be paying for a small share of it, while they would be getting the benefit of it. The people who will come to Berkeley in the future will have to pay it, and the tax will be so light upon each and every property owner that he or she would not know that they were taxed. We do not believe that there would be hardly a dissenting vote if an election was called, and do hope that the Board of Education will give this matter their immediate attention. There is not another town in the State of the size of Berkeley, and a great many smaller ones, but what has a finely equipped High School. Berkeley alone, in which is situated the greatest educational institution in the State, and one that is fast leading up to the best and greatest in the United States, has no handsome building, no first-class laboratory or gymnasium, and now even the old building, which has been by courtesy called a High School, will no longer accommodate the pupils who want to go there and who have a right to be there.

SECRETARY CARLISLE, who, instead of attending to his duties at Washington, is swinging around the Southern States with a Presidential bee in his bonnet working for the gold bugs of New York and England, said in a speech made at Memphis yesterday: "I have the greatest confidence in the ultimate success of the sound money movement. The wave of silver sentiment has reached formidable proportions, but I think it has about spent itself and is already on the decline. In my own State the struggle is a hard one and I have seldom seen such great general interest in a public question as is shown there, and, in fact, throughout the section. I trust the good sense and judgment of the Southern people. No section of the country is more vitally interested in the maintenance of a sound financial policy by the Government, and none has greater promises of prosperity under sound economic conditions." It would seem as though Mr. Carlisle were parrot-like, repeating the words of John Sherman, with just a little change here and there. There can be no doubt of the South, they are for free silver and all the speeches that Mr. Carlisle or any other gold bug may make will not change them.

SHARP at noon yesterday about 25,000 men and a large number of women made a rush from all sides into the Kickapoo reservation, for 450 odd claims open to white settlement. In less than an hour there were scores of contestants on each of those claims, in addition to the sooner who had already taken possession of the lands. The air was full of dust and the sound of shouting men and of rumbling wheels got fainter and fainter up the road, after the bridge, to where the road passes through a narrow canyon, had been crossed. Here an awful jam occurred delaying the racers for ten minutes. It was first intended to have two towns but after consultation the projectors of the towns agreed upon one town. The site of the town is a sandy bank, covered with cacti and underbrush. There were no rows among the boomers but there was a row among the deputy marshals and a gang of whiskey peddlers, which resulted in two of the whiskey men being killed.

TOMORROW the University of California athletes will be pitted against the hardest athletic team in the world, viz. the cream of the Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, Union and Dartmouth colleges, on the athletic grounds at Mott Haven. It will be seen by the above that our boys go in against the strongest team in the world and have tremendous odds against them. However, if the day and grounds be all right we have no fear but what the boys will give a good account of themselves. The boys claim that they are sure of winning at least four of the events. If they should do this there should be the greatest exultation on the part of the people of California, but should they only win one event, California should be more than satisfied.

THE Supreme Court of Nevada has affirmed the sentence of Mrs. Hartley, who killed Senator Foley in her studio in Reno. She was sentenced to eleven years in the penitentiary.

Two men, John Bryan and John Wilson, were sentenced five years ago to a ten years term each for robbing a farmer in the State of Washington. Since then two other criminals have confessed that they committed the crime.

A BOY'S COMPOSITION.

"I haint a very good writer, nor much of a speaker, but I am a great thinker. I think if there wuz less $3 men berried in $50 coffins, some widders would have more money. I think there would be more sheep and cheaper mutton chops if there wuz more 3-legged dogs in this country. I think my Pap has more sense this year than he had last year. Last year he swore and cuss all the time. Pap would walk and cuss, and eat and cuss, and almost sleep and cuss, that is, he'd try to sleep and cause he couldn't, he'd cuss. It was the roomatiz that made Pap cuss so. He aaked all over, and he pained mor'n he aaked. His palus just seemed to ake all the time, and his akes pained him just as bad. He was cross to Mam and Sister Liz and mor'n onet he throte the him book at me cause I split his medloine every time I giv him sum. Pap u'd cuss the doctor cause he charged him $2 for a perseripshun and he'd cuss the druggist cause it wuzant the right kind of medloine and he'd cuss me cause the druggist charged so much. He wuz jist cussin mad all last fall and winter and spent about $40 trying to git well. I apect he was madder cause he lost so much time mor'n he was about the money. One day pap was a readin' a nookpaper and he seed where Calderwoods roomatiz cure never failed and right away he says "Mother" (that's what he called Mam) "I'm going to git well, so I am. You send $5 right away to G. W. Calderwood, 116 Turk street, San Francisco, and tell him to send me some medloine quick as he can." Mam she sent the money and in a few days the medloine cum and there was printed direCTIONS on it which sed take a table spoonful evry 2 hours. Pap took sum right away and in 3 days he was walkin' around and in a week he was out doors and in 2 weeks he was as well as ever and now he's all the time whistellin the mookin' bird and the Swanee river. He don't cuss any more and last Sunday he went to church and the preacher jist give it to the people that swore, and when he stopt preachin Pap went up to him and give him a dollar and sed "Them's the kind of sermons I like to heer." I think my pap's a going to be one of the bestest men in 1895 that ever wuz. That's what I think cause I'm a thinker. Rheumatism is easily cured by Calderwood's new cure. THE LAND OF "PRETTY SOON."

I know of a land where the streets are paved
With the things which we meant to achieve.
If I waited with the money we meant to have Saved
And the pleasures for which we grieve.
The kind words unspoken, the promises broken
And many a coveted boon Are stowed away there in that land somewhere—
The land of "Pretty Soon."
There are uncut jewels of possible fame
Lying about in the dust,
And many a noble and lofty aim
Covered with mold and rust,
And, oh, this place, while it seems so near,
Is farther away than the moon.
Through our purpose is fair, yet we never get there—
The land of "Pretty Soon."
The road that leads to that mystic land
Is strewn with pitiful wrecks,
And the ships that have sailed for its shining strand
Bear skeletons on their decks.
It is farther at noon than it was at dawn,
And farther at night than at noon.
Oh, let us beware of that land down there—
The land of "Pretty Soon."

cial.

BRUIN JONES.

"Captain, who was the best soldier you ever knew?"

This question was propounded recently to Captain Bronaugh, the present coal oil inspector of St. Louis and a man who has seen enough of war to make his judgment in regard to soldiers worth something.

"Well, I hardly know," was the reply, "but I can tell you very easily who was the best fighter I ever knew."

"What's the difference?"
"There's a great deal of difference.
To be a good soldier one must have courage, patience and endurance, discipline and a great many other things. To be a good fighter one only needs to have plenty of the devil in him. I can't say in regard to the best soldier, but the best fighter I ever knew was undoubtedly a man named Jones. I have no idea what his first name really was, but our men all called him Bruin, for reasons that I think you can guess when you hear the story. He was a member of my company, but I have no recollection of how or when he joined us. The first day I remember ever to have seen him was the 15th of August, 1862, just the day before the awful fight at Lone Jack."

It seems that on that date all the companies in Lewis' regiment were reorganized, and that the voting for officers was all done by ballot. When it came to Bronaugh's company, every vote read was cast for him for captain, except the last one. To the surprise of every one, the last vote was called out in stentorian tones:

"The devil!"
At the announcement of this unexpected vote the men stared around at each other in amazement.

"Say," remarked the wit of the company at last, "that fellow ought to have better manners than vote for himself." In the laugh that followed all the company joined, except Jones. He stood stiff as a ramrod, with a countenance like that of Mephistopheles, until the laugh had subsided, and then he remarked:

"He voted for a blamed sight better man than Bronaugh, anyway."

I think that the reader will concede that when the captain compliments Mr.
Jones' fighting qualities it is not because of any special personal friendship for him. He was a man of about 30 years of age, below medium height, slender, clean shaven, dark complexion, and was very much like a hawk in the keenness of his eyes, the curvature of his nose, the muscularity of his voice and the general amiability of his disposition.
The captain sums up the case by saying:
"He was soured on the world and all the rest of mankind."

He was never known to agree with anybody on any subject that could be mentioned. The nearest he ever came to it was one day in camp, when the soldiers happened to be discussing the character of Abraham Lincoln, and one of them forcibly expressed the opinion that he was the greatest scoundrel that ever lived.

"Yes!" exclaimed Jones, with a profusion of lurid language. "There's only one more contemptible bound in the universe than Lincoln."

"Who's he?"

"Jeff Davis," he replied, with all the withering contempt he could crowd into the words. From this speech it may be imagined that while Mr. Jones hated the Union he did not adore the Confederacy. The boys in camp suggested that he wore the gray merely because he had more men to shoot at than if he wore the blue. There was no duty too hard for him, no night too cold or rainy for him to stand guard, no fight too dangerous for him, provided only he was allowed to have his fill of profanity and abuse for the world in general. Once when it was hinted that the artillery was not strong enough to dislodge a certain battery belonging to the enemy,
some one suggested:

"Put old Jones up in front and let him cuss at 'em. If that don't clean 'em out, there's no use to try bombshells."

He would not only curse the Federals, but the Confederates also, the officers as well as the men. Several times he was known to knock his messmate down with the flat side of a spade, and then if he was so inconsiderate as to remonstrate to threaten him with the edge. Owing to such traits in him as these, the men gradually grew unwilling to eat with him, so that for months he was a veritable hermit, though surrounded by men.
No one spoke to him or had anything of any kind to do with him when it could in any way be avoided, and this seemed to be exactly what he wanted. About this time he was nicknamed "Bruin," not only on account of his bearlike temper, but also because the solitary figure, squatting about by his campfire, eating his own food and holding converse with no one was very much like that of a bear caged by itself to prevent it from injuring anything.
In this way things worked tolerably smoothly for awhile, but before long

Captain Bronaugh and his men decided that if it could be done they would like very much to get Bruin transferred to some other company. There were just two difficulties in the way of this. In the first place, no captain who knew him very well would consent to take him, and, in the second place, if Bruin knew that Bronaugh and his men did not want him he would insist most strenuously on staying. Both these difficulties were circumvented by a little strategy. In the company of Captain Boles there was a man named Eph Goff, a Henry county man, a brave soldier and an ardent friend of Bronaugh. He is at present living on his farm near Clinton and is said to be as rollicksome and as fond of his joke now as he was then. One day Bronaugh approached Boles, explained the situation and asked that Goff be transferred to his company.
"All right," said Captain Boles.
"Who can you give me in his place?"
"Well, I've got a man named Jones you can have."

"Is he a good soldier?"
"The best fighter I ever saw."
"Done," said Captain Boles, and that part of the matter was settled. The only thing now remaining was to get Bruin's consent to be transferred, and this was done in the following manner:

"Mr. Jones," said Captain Bronaugh one day, "I understand you are trying to get out of my company and into Captain Boles'. I want you to understand, sir, that I don't propose to permit you to do anything of the kind. If any officer has got to be losing his men for every little fool reason that may come up, there'd just as well not be any officer at all."

Bruin looked a little dazed at this statement of the case, and then remarked that he'd be dash blank dashed if he would stay in any such double dashed company any more—just see if he would!
In this manner his consent was won, and the next day he applied to Captain Boles for a transfer. The application should have been sent to certain superior officers, but Captain Bronaugh was unwilling for this to be done, for fear he might lose his trade.

"No use to bother Colonel Lewis about a little thing like that," he said to Boles. "Just let's wait till the thing has about had time to go through the rounds and then just swap the men ourselves."

Accordingly, some two weeks later, Bruin was informed that his transfer had been granted, the two captains exchanged the names and the trade was settled.

The next time the two captains met was several months later in Bosier parish, Louisiana, and—shall I confess it—at a dance. If this statement should meet the eyes of any of his church officials, they are respectfully requested not to turn him out on account of it. The offense was committed over 30 years ago, and I do not really think he makes a practice of dancing today. However, he and Boles were both on the floor and dancing, when the latter exclaimed:

"Say, Bronaugh, I've got a crow to pick with you."

"What is it?"
"You remember that fellow Jones you traded off on me? What did you mean by telling me he was a good soldier?"

"I never said it, Boles. I said he was the best fighter I ever saw."

"Oh, that was it, was it? I believe you were right about it too. He's whipped every private in my company already, and they say he is going to begin on the officers next. There's no discount on his being a fighter."

The last time Captain Bronaugh ever saw Bruin was in the hospital at Memphis. The first face he noticed when he entered the ward was his, and it was pale and still as death. Hoping to be of some service to one of his former men, the captain stood at the bedside for a moment. Just then the closed eyes opened, the face lighted up with its old expression, and in the half stifled accents of death the old stream of profanity began to flow. Bruin was Bruin to the last.

Hundreds of old Confederate soldiers in Missouri will recall poor Bruin with a glimmer about the eyes that is half a smile and half a tear. Nobody knows what his first name really was; nobody ever knew where he came from. It used to be asserted that he was from Arkansas, but perhaps this was merely from a humorous desire to lower the reputation of that state. No one knows who his people were or what his past history was. Let us hope, though, that he who knows all about him saw something in his early life that could account for the hardness of heart of this Timon of Athens of the Confederacy and made some allowance accordingly.—P. W.
Horn in St. Louis Republic.

Popularity of the Bicycle.

Some definite idea of the growth of the bicycle business in this country may be gained from the fact that whereas the total number of bicycle manufactories in the United States was but six in 1885, with an output of only 11,000 wheels, and in 1890 but 17, with an output of 40,000, at the present time there are 126 factories, which will make an aggregate of nearly or quite half a million machines this year. The increase in the last five years has been nothing short of marvelous, and it is probable that the next five years will see a very great advance upon the present product of these fast multiplying concerns. And now that bicycling is becoming so much more general than hitherto there is added reason why we should improve our country roads. If road reform was necessary five years ago, it is far more necessary and desirable now.—Providence Journal.

HOW TO AVOID COLDS.

A CLAIM THAT THEY ARE LARGELY DUE TO FLANNELS.

Have Your Underclothing Light and Loose and Keep Up Your Natural Heat—Colds Are Responsible For a Great Deal of Illness and Should Not Be Overlooked.

A physician who has given much thought to the hygiene of clothing has come to the conclusion that many deaths are caused by heavy woolen underclothing.

It can be proved that flannels are often the cause of severe colds. To have a cold is to be in a diseased condition, and that means a loss of vitality and a shortening of life. It may even mean sudden death.

One can easily demonstrate in one's own person on a small scale the ill effects of excessive flannels. Bind your hand in thick woolen bandages and leave it in that condition for a night. In the morning you will find it damp and flabby, the pores all open. It is in the most susceptible condition for catching cold. If the whole body were brought to the same state, the result of exposure to cold air would inevitably be disastrous.

That the whole body is often brought to a nearly similar condition is certain. The majority of people during the winter incase themselves in heavy, tight woolen or flannel garments. These provoke perspiration and do not absorb it. The result is that the wearer's skin is hot, damp and highly susceptible to the inflammatory effects of cold. A slightly lowered temperature can hardly fail to bring on a cold.

Heavy woolen underclothing is able to do all the more harm because it has the weight of ancient domestic tradition. Few people dare to be wiser than their grandmothers. Woolen underclothing, according to modern experience, should be as light as is consistent with comfort. There are many persons who go through the winter healthily in cotton underwear, and these are probably the most fortunate class of the population. But the warmth preserving qualities of wool are not to be ignored.

One of its great properties is that it is a bad conductor of heat. The heat of the body, therefore, is not given out by it. It also does not stick to the skin and does not absorb perspiration freely. This is a quality of doubtful value. While it is agreeable not to have your underclothing glued to your skin it is injurious to carry a deposit of moisture which may become cold and do harm in all parts of the body.

The object, therefore, should be to wear underclothing which does not cause excessive perspiration. It should be light and loose. Wool is apparently the best material for the majority of people.

The subject of colds receives too little attention. Many people are resigned to the perpetual possession of them. They should be regarded as disease dangerous, offensive and unclean. Patent medicine advertisements print eloquent descriptions of their final effects. These remarks are applicable to those who have neglected themselves too long and are fit subjects for the hospital or prolonged medical treatment. A wise attention to clothing and the general health is more valuable than all remedies and treatment.

Colds are probably the chief cause of illness and disease among human beings. They give little trouble to animals, who wear no clothing. Arguing from these facts, some enthusiasts would say that the less clothing you wear and the more you expose yourself the healthier you will be.

But a state of civilization of considerable antiquity has made it necessary for man to preserve his natural heat by artificial means. It is not permissible to abandon clothing entirely in this country. Nor is it advisable to wear as little as the public authorities will permit during an American winter.

Neither warm clothing nor artificial heat will satisfactorily replace the natural heat of the body. To preserve this should be the first aim of all who wish to avoid colds. Good food, fresh air and exercise are obviously the principal means.

In the care of the body the skin should take an important place. As far as colds are concerned it is all important, because they rarely occur unless the skin is in a certain condition.

When the pores of the skin are opened, the cold air enters where it is not wanted and causes an inflammation. In cold weather the pores should be closed.

Cold water is an excellent vehicle for closing the pores. The weight of experience seems to prove that it is better to use warm water first. Much depends on the individual constitution.

The warm water cleanses and softens the skin and relieves the body of superfluous moisture, the frequent source of colds. Following this, the cold water will close the pores and put the skin in a sound, normal condition. No one should stay in cold water long enough to feel discomfort.—New York World.

Just Like a Man.

Mrs. Somebody, who lives in Thirtieth street, has an infant son who is just beginning to walk. Last week he fell down stairs, so his mother bought a gate to put at the top of the stairs. There is a little metal socket screwed to each side of the stairs, and the gate fits into these. It was put up one day—Wednesday, I think. It was Mrs. Somebody's night at the lodge, and Mrs. Somebody remembered after he had left the house that he had not been told of the gate. She was so exercised for fear he would fall over it when he came in that she sat up for him. He was late, very late, and she was very tired. And yet when he did come, and realized how devotedly she had waited up in order to save him a tumble, what do you think the heartless man said?

"Why, my dear," said he, "why didn't you just lift the gate out?"

Wasn't that just like a man?—Wash-a Post.
